

From: tooner@mac.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 11/21/01 11:05am
Subject: IS THIS FOR REAL?

I find the proposed conduct remedy to be inappropriate and wholly inadequate for a company which has demonstrated nothing but contempt for previous similar conduct remedies (such as the 1995 consent decree in which MSFT agreed not to "tie" application software to the OS-but then did just that with Internet Explorer). Even after being found guilty of antitrust violations in that case, they face no punishment, and thus have no incentive to take the new conduct restrictions any more seriously than the old ones.

Paul Gartland
Austin, TX